Dear Sir or Madam:

Please allow my husband, Dirk Coldewey, to revive his patent applications. He did not see his letters from the patent office, and was not aware that there were missing parts to his application due to some upheavals in our home life. Around the time of the birth of our second child, we did some rearranging. We switched the study and the nursery, and in the process, some important papers got boxed up. The missing letters from the patent office were in one of those boxes.

Thanks for your consideration in this serious matter.

Sincerely,

Blythe A. Campbell
